HOUSE TO LET.

"Strange that a harp of thousand strings
Should keep in tune so long."

THE subscriber has several chambers to let in his house which is beautifully located directly opposite Trinity Church Burying Ground; he will rent the rooms with furniture, or without, as may best suit the tenant. There is, probably, no more desirable spot in Newport, for those whose souls are not entirely steeped in sin, and wrapped up in the flimpsy veil of this world's delusion; the occupant may sit at the window, and view the last home of man in all its mysterious and solemn grandeur,—and seriously reflect upon the great uncertainty of all things human. Here he can commune with himself, and meditate, in full view of the grave yard, on the final consummation of all things, and anticipate that universal crash, when the earth shall be burned up, and the heavens be rolled together as a scroll. We must reflect upon these things here, and be prepared with our passport when we meet the last Tyler, or we shall receive the fatal mark of the black brush; why, land! what is a few day's sojourn in this miserable world, compared to a high seat in the Celestial Lodge above, where the Knighthood will be gathered in the pure robes of innocence and beauty!

In order to secure the chambers, early application should be made, to

TO THE PICTURE OF A POETESS.

BY JANE TAYLOR WORTHINGTON.

It is a face to wake the thought
Of what its past had been;
For on that fair, reflecting brow,
Sad histories are seen
Of life's illusions and its ties
All bartered for a name—
Of youth that gave its golden hopes
In martyrdom to Fame.

How often had that small white hand,
Through heavy hours of care,
Grown tremulous with tracing down
The dreams that were so fair!
How had it prest the feverish brow
In weariness and pain,
As if to still the thronging thoughts
Of that bewildered brain!

And then, as line by line she wrote
The beauty that she dreamed,
How cold and dark the actual world
Of her experience seemed—
How mockingly in contrast came
Th' uncomprehending throng,
With her enchanting solitude
Of ecstacy and song!

And through the dim and troubled years
Her brief experience knew,
Her soul grew dark in strife between
The radiant and the true,
Until e'en inspiration ceased
Her woman's heart to sway,
And Genius, lingering to the last,
Then swept itself away.

Ah! restless one, as on thy face
Thus dreamingly I dwell,
And see the sad, desponding look
Of lips that spoke so well,
I feel that faculties like thine
Not all in vain were given—
That those whose hopes were wasted here
Find most fulfilled in heaven.

THE REFORM: A TRUE STORY.

BY JUDIE COLE.

"Come Kate, don't look so dismal, I dare say Frank will forgive you, though you were so ill-natured this morning; and as it is almost time for his evening visit, you had better go down to the parlor, where I will join you when my little angel is asleep,"—and so saying the young mother kissed her bright boy, who lay in his snowy night dress, half sleeping on her lap. Kate Milton rose to leave the nursery, and as she passed her little nephew, stooped to print a kiss on his dimpled hand, her sister saw that her eyes were overflowing with tears; she, however, made no comment, and had quite forgotten the circumstance, when half an hour after, she entered the parlor, and found Kate, with her face bowed on her hands which rested on the table, and sobbing in all the anguish of a warm young heart's first sorrow.

"Kate," exclaimed Mrs. Atherton, "my sister, what ails you; what can have happened to distress you?" And she drew the weeping girl to her bosom, with an anxious fondness that only an elder sister can feel for the youngling of her mother's little flock.

When Kate could command her voice, she said, "Belle, I ought to have told you before that I have put an end to my engagement with Frank Vernon, and that he left his home this morning, on his way to Texas."

The arm of Mrs. Atherton relaxed its fond pressure of her sister's waist, and she asked hurriedly,—"why have you done this? Why have you driven him from his home, to die of a fever, or to fall a prey to all the temptations awaiting a thoughtless young man like him, in that hot bed of vice?"

"Because, dear sister, I feel that my happiness would not be safe in his keeping; even you, who are always blind to the faults of those you love, acknowledge that he is thoughtless,—and there are many who unhesitatingly say that he is worse than thoughtless."

"Of course, Kate, every one has enemies, and Frank Vernon is too popular among the many, not to have the few watching malignantly to detect and proclaim every trifling error; but you, surely would not break an engagement, entered into almost in your childhood, and sanctioned by our dear parents, merely because busy rumor tells of Frank's wildness, and swells some college frolic into a size of giant magnitude,—you cannot be so unjust."

"No, I hope I am not unjust; when I plighted my troth to Frank Vernon, I was, as you know, but a child, and he was a warm-hearted, generous boy, whose character promised to develope into everything that is noble and excellent; since then, he has been exposed to evil influences—he has yielded to the temptations surrounding him, and became what you would not wish the husband of your sister to be, dear Belle. I do not say that he gambles or drinks habitually, but I know that the dice box is sometimes in his trembling, eager hand, and that in the scenes of revelry which he too frequently joins, the wine cup never passes him by; you know, too, how, instead of pursuing the study of a profession, as he promised his dying mother he would, his days are passed in idle pleasure with the gayest and most dissipated of our acquaintance. Could I—could any woman be happy with such a man?"

Mrs. Atherton sighed, for Frank Vernon was the dear friend of her husband, who, though he shared not in his excesses, yet loved him with an almost woman tenderness; she felt that her sister was right, yet was she almost angered at her firmness, which she knew was the result of deep reflection, and that from her, decision, once made, and on such a basis, there was no appeal.

Sisters are not often so unlike, as Belle and Kate Milton; the former was one of those sunny creatures that find goodness and beauty in everything and everybody; the world to her was always bright. Married very young to the man of her choice, who, kind and amiable, had delighted to spend his ample fortune in any way to suit her taste and fancy—caressed by all—loved dearly in the home of her childhood, and not less dearly by her husband's friends,—she had never been called to make any great sacrifice—had never felt a heart-searching sorrow, and had almost grown to believe that earth had no dark shadows, and that every one might be happy, if he would. In fact, her life had been so joyous, she could form no adequate conception of sorrow.

Kate had remained longer at home with her mother,—had seen her bending beneath the weight of care inseparable from the rearing of a large family; she had shared her father's anxieties, of which, as a thriving, active merchant, he had not a few; she was the depository of her sister's troubles, and her brother's vexations,—and being naturally thoughtful and grave, had learned early to look far beyond the surface, and to estimate things more at their real value, than the kind, light-hearted Mrs. Atherton, who, though some dozen years older, in reality, yet seemed, from her child-like manner and character, much younger of the two. Kate Milton knew that in discarding Frank Vernon, she would provoke the sarcasms of her acquaintance—the anger of his family, and she sadly feared the reproaches of her own; she knew her brother Atherton regarded him with a love like Jonathan's,—that her parents looked on him already like a son, and she hesitated long before she decided against him. She was pained and grieved at Mr. Atherton's coldness, distressed and mortified by the insulting manner in which Clara and Grace Vernon avoided her in their almost daily meetings, in their walks, visits, &c; her heart ached when she met the reproachful look of her sister, and she longed to return to her own home, and on her mother's breast yield up the life that had now for her no brightness. Why was she not happy in that home? She was fondly welcomed there, and her father, as he blessed her on her return, resolved that from his lip, she should hear no word of censure, though the one darling scheme of his life had failed; and her mother, as she wound her arms about her, and kissed her trembling lips, breathed in her ear, "I know it all, my daughter, you have done wisely; may God strengthen you to bear this sorrow." It was the first time that any one had seemed to feel that Kate could suffer in driving from her heart the love she had cherished there from childhood; all others had felt for Frank—for themselves,—the mother alone knew every spring of her noble nature, and how entirely she had loved Frank Vernon, felt for, and with, her afflicted child.

(Concluded to-morrow.)

☞The bark Pons, recently captured as a Slaver, by the U. S. ship Yorktown, has been sold at auction, in Philadelphia, by order of the U. S. Court, and brought $5,450.

☞About sixty divorces have been granted by the Pennsylvania Legislature, at its recent session.

☞The election for Delegates to the State Convention, to revise and amend the Constitution of the State of New York, has just been held; but little interest was manifested by either of the parties particularly the Whigs, and there will probably be a democratic majority in the Convention. It is proposed to make many material changes in the Constitution of that State.

☞We learn from the Boston Star, that John B. Gough, the great Temperance advocate, is in that city, on a flying trip, from his visit to the South—much improved in health. He obtained over five thousand signatures to the pledge, during his stay in Virginia. He is soon to return.

☞A negro was whipped to death at Vienna, Illinois, a few days since.

☞Charlotte Cushman and her sister, are at Dublin, setting the Irishmen wild with delight.

Another Piano Forte Attachment Discovered.—A New York paper says that a gentleman, on going home to dinner one day last week, discovered that an entirely original attachment had been put upon his Piano during his absence, by the Deputy Sheriff. A pretty good joke.

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS.
MONDAY, MAY 4, 1846.

☞In presenting our humble sheet, for the first time, to the public ken, it will be expected of us, as a matter of course, that we make our "best bow," and commence, without further ceremony, to set forth our purpose and our aim; thus keeping within the circle of common usage, in talking to a reasonable curiosity, if not to a legitimate claim upon our candor.

Be it known, then, that it is our intention to furnish the inhabitants and visitants of this goodly town, and the public at large, with the perusal of a daily sheet, of moderate dimentions, and humble pretendings; but filled, as far as may be, with reading matter of general interest and entertainment.

In politics we shall hold strict neutrality, leaving the field of party warfare to those already in the engagement, who are "eager for the prey;" but carefully culling for our pages all of interest in movement, which either party may present. But though neutral as to party, we trust ever to be found on the side of our common country, her Institutions and her Rights; vindicating, to the best of our ability, all that may tend to her advancement, and honor; and opposing every thing that may tend to tarnish her fair fame, or bring upon her Institutions deserved reproach.

In Religion also, we shall know, in the conducting of our paper, no sect, or party; but ever strive to be guided by the spirit which christianity breathes, in the management of its columns, admitting nothing that shall savor of immorality, or that shall give just cause of offence to the most refined taste.

Passing events will be faithfully chronicled; and also items of general intelligence which can have any bearing on the welfare of community and the prosperity of our citizens, will be carefully presented.

In the wide range which we have thus marked out for ourselves, we hope to find room and means for presenting an agreeable variety of useful and interesting matter to our readers, and to make our paper a welcome visitor to all circles.

Feeling that the wants of the place, particularly during the summer months, when many are drawn hither from different parts of the land, and especially the convenience of our more permanent population will justify the experiment we make, we start upon our enterprise with a good degree of confidence that we shall be sustained by an intelligent and enterprising community. And we therefore earnestly solicit the aid of all who desire the convenience of a Daily Paper in Newport.

Having thus summarily expressed our purpose and design, we cheerfully spread our canvass to the winds, and woo the favoring breeze.

Election.—To-morrow is the annual election day in this State, and the ceremonies of the inauguration of the Governor, &c., will take place in this town. It will be quite an interesting week, especially as there has been no choice of Governor by the people, and the election of that officer will consequently devolve upon the Legislature.—We shall report the proceedings of that body during the week, and publish them in an Evening edition of the News, within an hour after the adjournment of the Legislature.

☞Hon. Henry Clay reached Ashland on the 23 ult., in excellent health and spirits.

☞We see by the New York papers that a resolution has passed both branches of the city Government, to extend Albany street, through Trinity Church Burial Ground, to Broadway. We are very much astonished at so heartless and unfeeling an act on the part of the city Fathers, and have no doubt but that it will cause great commotion, not only among those who have relatives and friends buried there, but also among all those whose sympathies and kind feelings, and respect for the ashes of the dead, are not entirely blunted. This is called an improvement! Pray, what next? These money-making Gothamites, or a portion of them, seem to have no respect for the dead, and are willing to demolish that ancient and sacred depository of those who have been gathered to their fathers, and are now reposing in deathless slumber, by the side of Trinity, amid all the hum and confusion of Broadway. We should be very unwilling to have a friend buried there, but since so many have been laid within this yard, the common decencies of life should teach all to respect the place as solemnly dedicated to death; and no thought of improvement, no desire to speculate in worldly matters, should, for a moment, induce any one to countenance the idea of desecrating the spot, by disturbing the dead, or carelessly treading upon their ashes, by assisting in the onward march of business, at such a cost.

'Tis a hallowed spot where rest the dead,
In dreamless slumber waiting.

☞We have issued our paper, without putting forth a prospectus of what we intend to do, as we prefer to let our sheet speak for itself; and although we have not had the project in anticipation for a long time, still we have made a beginning, and intend to carry out our plans. We are out upon the ocean with our bark, and although it has been said "if there is one daily paper in Newport, there shall be two," still we do not despair of success. We must, and will have, sea room.

As soon as the fashionable season commences, we shall publish a daily list of the arrivals of visitors at all the Hotels in town.

A Good Voyage.—The ship Flora, of New London, has just arrived, after an absence of twelve months, to a day, with 2200 bbls. oil.

☞Literary notices of new books and magazines will be a feature in the editorial department of the News, which will receive careful attention; and such as furnish us copies of recent publications, with their names marked thereon, will be sure to have them candidly noticed, and the attention of the public called to them.

☞Gov. Jackson will probably arrive in the boat, this evening, from Providence, when the usual salute will be fired by the Artillery Company.

☞To-morrow will be a great day for Egg-pop and Blue Eggs, in Newport. From the demonstrations already made in the stores about street, we anticipate a very lively Election.

☞We commence on our outside, to-day, a very interesting and excellent story, from the pen of a Newport lady, which we commend to our lady readers. We also publish a beautiful poem from the polished pen of the accomplished Mrs. Jane Taylor Worthington, formerly of this town. Both will be read with interest.

Wanted.—Several active and smart boys, to sell the News; to whom liberal wages will be given. Now's your chance, boys.

☞Our advertising friends are requested to hand in their favors as early in the day as possible.

☞Those who desire to become subscribers to the News, and wish the paper left regularly at their dwelling or store, will please leave their names at the office immediately, so that we may make the necessary arrangements with our carriers.

☞The Artillery Company will make their first appearance to-morrow, in their new uniform, to escort the Governor and Legislature, from Townsend's to the State House, at 10 o'clock.

☞Our friends in the Country, who do not reside more than thirty miles from Newport, can have the News sent to them, every day, free of postage, by the new Post Office law; will they not avail themselves of this opportunity to obtain a Daily Paper, for a trifle more than what they would have to pay for a weekly?

☞Hon. Albert C. Green, U. S. Senator from this State, arrived at his home in Providence, on Friday morning last.

Arrival of the Roger Williams.—The new and splendid Steamer Roger Williams, Capt. B. F. Woolsey, arrived here last evening, in less than ten hours from New York; we understand that she did not come at her full speed. She went immediately to Providence, and will return again to-day.

From Mexico.—The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, of the 30th ult., says that there is a rumor in that city that Gen. Taylor has been attacked by the Mexican forces, and defeated with a loss of 700 men. We shall know more about this in a few days; at present, we place but little confidence in the report.

Congress has not been in session for a day or two, as the Capitol was being cleansed, and prepared for summer; this body will not probably adjourn before August or September.

Gen. Worth has resigned his commission in the U. S. Army, and left the Camp opposite Matamoras, for the North.

☞John C. Spencer, Jr., son of the late Secretary of War, and Purser on board the U. S. sloop of war Marion, died on the Coast of Africa, recently, of yellow fever.

☞Gov. Dorr's health is said to have become more feeble within the last two months. He rides out occasionally, of an afternoon, but otherwise is not able to leave his room.—N. Y. Tribune, 25th ult.

A friend, who is acquainted with Gov. Dorr, informed us, on reading the above extract, that it was a mistake; that Gov. Dorr's health was remarkbly good. Which is correct?—Ed. News.

☞Thus we have been called to consign to the silent grave, a dear, and much beloved sister; one with whom we spent many happy hours, during our youth; and one with whom we have taken sweet counsel since that time. But she has gone, gone, into the presence of the searcher of all hearts, to receive her reward. Death had no sting to her—she was prepared to meet it.—Ed. News.

"The Angel of the covenant
Had come, and faithful to his promise, stood,
Prepared to walk with her through death's dark vale.
And now those eyes, which once beamed loveliness
On all around, were closed without a cloud.
They sat as sets the morning star, which goes
Not down, behind the darkened west, nor hides
Obscurely among the tempest of the sky,
But melts away into the light of heaven."

In this town, on the 26th ult., after a protracted illness, which she bore with Christian firmness, Mrs. Mary Hopkins, aged 57, daughter of the late Clark Taggart, Esq.

A still greater revolution in the sale of Ready Made Clothing. New Store and new Goods, at the old stand, where the public have been favored with so many good bargains. 91 Thames street, one door north of Messrs. W. B. & E. J. Swan's.

If I can but induce the people to call upon me, I will give them the most positive proof of the truth of this assertion, as I am determined to secure for the United States Clothing Store a tremendous run of custom, and, aware as I am, that competition is so severe, that the only mode of success is to offer my Goods at a small advance on Cost. Will the people call upon me? I will give them the most positive and pleasing evidence of what I say; still more, I will not urge them with undue persuasion to purchase what they do not want. The custom of forcing goods upon people has become so prevalent that they are sorely perplexed to know where they can go and be allowed the use of their own judgment in selection of Goods. New-York Illustrated Magazine of Literature and Art.

Edited by LAWRENCE LABREE, and Published by WILLIAM TAYLOR, No. 2 Astor House, New-York.

THE Second Volume of the "ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE" will be commenced with the May number, and will be published about the fifteenth of April, and the success which has so far attended our enterprize has determined us to spare nothing that will insure an increased patronage. The large edition printed of the first volume was exhausted on the publication of the fourth number.

Our new volume will be commenced with a much larger edition, to secure for subscribers complete sets, and will possess INCREASED ATTRACTIONS! Great improvements will be made in our Engravings, giving FOUR SPLENDID STEEL PLATES! in each number, and a variety of finely executed ILLUSTRATIONS ON WOOD! The letter-press will be of a high and refined order, original and selected, consisting of Romance, Historical Sketches, Poetry, Essays, Reviews, Biography, &c. &c. Our selections will be mostly from sources beyond the reach or means of the general reader, and no pains or expense will be spared to make it worthy the attention of every one.

The Magazine will be handsomely printed on Butler's superfine paper, with bold beautiful type, and each number will contain SIXTY-FOUR LARGE OCTAVO PAGES! making two elegant volumes a year of 768 pages, (384 each,) illustrated with FORTY-EIGHT ENGRAVINGS ON STEEL! independent of the numerous illustrations on wood.

As a LADY'S and GENTLEMAN'S Magazine, it may be welcomed by, and prove an agreeable companion to, the most fastidious.

Arrangements have been made to procure original translations from some of the most popular French authors. The press in all parts of the country have been lavish in their praises of the "Illustrated Magazine," as will be seen by the following:—

The Journal of Commerce says: "The literary contents are of the most interesting character."

The Rambler says: "It is destined to be the Magazine of the country."

It is got up in a very elegant style, type, paper, engravings—all good. * * It will prove a powerful rival among its lighter competitors.—N. Y. Evening Mirror.

Each number contains four gems of the old or new masters, besides some half a score of wood-cut illustrations of the literary contents.

Phil. Sat. Courier.

It will be a favorite for all those who look for choice pictorials.—N. Y. Sunday Atlas.

Of its literary contents we need not speak, unless to say that they are "increasing rich."

The embellishments are uncommonly elegant, both in design and execution.—N. Y. True Sun.

It is a work which ought to have a great circulation.—Noah's Weekly Messenger.

Light, graceful, pleasant reading, of a pure moral tone and mostly novel, accompanied with no less than four steel and four wood engravings, which elegantly embellish as well as illustrate the work.—Park Benjamin's Western Continent.

Those who wish a first-rate table companion, must obtain the New-York Illustrated Magazine.—Barre, (Mass.) Pat.

It contains four [steel] engravings, and a large number of wood cuts, besides sixty-four pages of excellent reading matter.—Phila. Chronicle.

One of the pleasantest periodicals of light literature published in this country.—Portland Bulletin.

Numerous other compliments might be cited, had we room.

☞ AGENTS, and persons wishing to commence with the new volume, are requested to send in their order as soon as possible, to secure complete sets.

TERMS.—Yearly subscription, $3; two copies, $5; or five copies (to one address) $10.

NO MORE SUFFERING

FROM Diseases, Eruptions and Blemishes of the Skin. This Soap is an Eastern Botanical discovery of superior efficacy for rendering the skin soft, clear and fair, and imparting to the complexion a healthy roseate hue; as a creator and conservator of a transpatently fair skin Radway's Chinese Medicated Soap may be said to exert an almost magical effect; it being perfectly free from all mineral admixture; it is distinguished for its extremely bland, purifying and soothing effects upon the skin, which by its action on the pores and minute secretory vessels expels all impurities from the surface, allays every tendency to inflammation, and effectually removes all redness, Tan, Pimples, Spots, Freckles, Salt Rheum, Ring Worm, Erysipelas, Rash, and other unsightly cutaneous visitations.

PICKLES,

PUT up in wine vinegar, a choice selection for family use at the Franklin Hall, corner of Thames and Fair streets. FRANK HAMMETT.

The Columbian Magazine, 1846.

Edited by JOHN INMAN and ROBERT A. WEST.

IN entering upon the fifth volume of the Columbian Magazine we find ourselves somewhat perplexed as to the right execution of our task.—We have much to say of the past, but it might seem egotistical to say it; and we have much to say of the future, but we fear lest we should appear unduly to boast. On the other hand, something at this season must be said, lest we should appear ungrateful for the steadily increasing patronage bestowed upon us. Is not ours a pleasant predicament? On one hand stands the spirits of our proverbial modesty, and the moment we begin to speak of what we have done and shall do, it lays its shadowy finger upon its ghostly lips, and with other mysterious gestures frowns us into silence; on the other hand the generous public—the embodiment and impersonation of several thousands of subscribers and readers—demands that we pay tribute to their liberal patronage, that we recall the pleasures they have been wont to enjoy for now two years in our pages, and that we declare our plans for the future. We have, of course, no choice left but to exorcise the ghost of our native bashfulness. 'Tis done;—and now we will talk freely with our "dear public," of ourselves and our intentions.

How rapidly, and notwithstanding difficulties to be surmounted, how pleasantly has time sped since we tried the experiment of a new magazine in this great emporium of commerce. Two years only have elapsed, and yet our enterprise has been crowned with success, and the pages of the Columbian Magazine periodically gladden and instruct the hearts of the matchless fair ones of our own proud city and state, throwing the light of its pleasant tales and ever virtuous sentiments over many thousand family circles, fostering purest affections and teaching lessons that well might fall from mother's lips into maiden's listening ears. Already has our magazine numerous readers in every State of the Union. The shrewd and observant New Englander greets it with a hearty welcome; on summer's eve beneath shady trees, or on winters's night around the glowing hearth, many a youthful scion of a worthy sire reads aloud from its pages, while beautiful and virtuous daughters ply the willing needle, and aged sire and dame exchange approving and delighted glances. Far away in the thickly peopled West do we aid in upholding and perpetuating the refining influence of literature and art, and soothe the asperities of arduous toil and isolated life; and the sunny South greets us monthly with a frank and generous welcome. Yes, brief though our existence has been, it has neither been profitless nor joyless. We have sought to supply Americans with a magazine worthy of America, and the universal hail of welcome that has greeted us has far exceeded our expectations, while it has increased our conviction that a magazine such as we have been able to furnish, was needed for the many thousands of American readers.

We enter upon our third year with bright and cheering prospects. Every where has the press spoken in terms of high commendation, not alone of the literary contents of the Columbian, but of its unsurpassed embellishments, and never with warmer praise than during the last six months. This, with our increased circulation, we take as an acknowledgement that we have fulfilled the promises we renewed six months ago. We need not again renew them. Be it ours to DO and not to BOAST. To those who have patronized us so far, we offer grateful thanks. We have no doubt that we shall continue to secure their approval and their good wishes. To those who, now that THE NEW POSTAGE LAW IS IN FULL OPERATION and a new year is commencing, will doubtless swell the list of our patrons, we say that we have contracted for, and have in progress some of the richest and rarest embellishments, for the new volume, that have ever been produced in this country—embellishments DESIGNED as well as ENGRAVED EXPRESSLY FOR THE WORK; and that we have entered into treaty with many of the first American authors regularly to aid us by their literary labors. These arrangements have of course entailed upon us great expense, but we intend that the Columbian shall be the first—in, every respect the best—of American magazines. Let there be no misapprehension on this point, and let our friends give us the return of a still larger patronage, for we WILL deserve it.

As to the past or future discharge of our editorial duties it behooves us to say little. We shall indeed but express our obligations to our numerous correspondents, and request a continuance of their favors, assuring them that they shall ever have the most courteous attention at our hands.

We have but to add that the publisher enters upon a new volume, therefore, with expectations of increased patronage. He has every reason for indulging such expectations. Increased exertions will be made to deserve it in each department of the work.

Speaking of correspondents, we refer with pride to the annexed list of those who have hitherto aided us, embodying, as it does, names that are an honor to our country's literature—those who have attained to the highest fame and others who are steadily and rapidly pressing to the same goal.
